The Flagstaff Lynching.

Special to the JOURNAL-MINER.

FLAGSTAFF, January 19.—John N. Berry died from the shot inflicted by George Hawkins last evening. The town was in a state of intense excitement, as Berry was one of the most popular men here.

The two persons, George and William Hawkins, were locked up in jail at night, and fearing there might be an attempt made to deal summary justice to them, J. Y. Crothers and William West were appointed as guard to watch the outside of the jail. A few minutes before 2 o'clock this morning a body of masked men dropped on the guard and preventing revolvers at their heads, kept them from giving any alarm, while others battered in the doors of the jail. What transpired inside will never be known, but George Hawkins was heard pleading strongly for life. A struggle then ensued and six shots were fired, when the men left as silently as they came. Mr. Crothers and Mr. West then entered the jail and found the body of George Hawkins lying in the doorway of his cell, and that of William on the floor of the cell. Both men were dead. The lynchers left a rope on the floor of the cell in which a noose had been made. This looks as if they went with the intention of lynching the men, but they were probably shot on account of the resistance they made. Blood is bespattered over the walls and furniture of the outside room, showing that a terrible struggle must have taken place. There is no evidence as to who the men were. The boys were sons of J. F. Hawkins, who runs a restaurant here.

On a Sled.

H. M. Van Arman, formerly secretary of Arizona, now railroad passenger agent at Chicago, writes from that land where he says "the blizzard blows, and the cold wave waxes," and gives his experience as a tobogganist. He says: "The toboggan is a flat-bottomed hand-sled, about four feet long and two feet wide, and is calculated to carry four people. The parties are made up of ladies and gentlemen, or boys and girls, as they call themselves, no matter what age. They go to the top of the slide, where a man arranges a party on a toboggan. A lady sits in front with her feet tucked close against the front guard, then a gentleman sits behind her with his feet tucked up around her; then another lady, then a gentleman whose duty it is to guide the toboggan. They are then started down with a rush like a locomotive engine at full speed, and in less time than it takes to tell about it, are at the bottom. If nothing happens they get down safely, and then one of the party looks to the top of the slide and exclaims: 'What a fine performance!' I know a man who weighs 220 pounds who tried it. He made only one trip, and although there was a pretty woman in front to hold to, he didn't want to try it again. The strain on his muscles was too great and the pace too rapid. I know this is true, for that man was myself."

Last Night's Reception.

The Knights of Pythias gave a reception and banquet last evening to the visiting brethren, extending special invitations to B. A. Ficker, of Tombstone, lodge past supreme representative; A. S. Jones, also of Tombstone, past grand chancellor; C. K. Drake, grand M. of E., and Joseph Perry, past chancellor, both members of Tucson lodge. The reception was given in the castle hall, special arrangements having been made for dancing and a general good time. At 11 o'clock p. m. the party adjourned to the supper room where a sumptuous banquet had been spread under the skillful direction of our popular caterer, Jules Baumann. An hour was enjoyably occupied in feasting, mirth and song. Mr. E. W. French as toast-master, called upon several of the Knights, who responded in an eloquent manner to the following toasts: B. A. Ficker—"The Supreme Grand Lodge A. S. Jones—"The Fair and the Brave." Joseph Perry—"Knights of Pythias." George W. Rines—"Prescott Lodge No. 1." After the banquet dancing was resumed and continued until 1 o'clock, when the party broke, declaring the reception to be one of the most enjoyable ever given in Prescott.

Train Wreckers.

A neatly planned attempt was made by a party of train robbers to wreck the Atlantic & Pacific passenger train that arrived at a belated hour yesterday morning.

A rail was unsprung from the track at a point where there is a heavy grade and where it would be impossible for an engineer to "hold" his engine. The rail was left in position to prevent attracting notice and a stout larrikin was attached to drag it to his place at the fatal moment.

Luckily for the train and the lives of the passengers it was three hours late and when an engine came thundering down the track at 9 o'clock and fell into the trap of the robbers it was not the engine of the passenger train, but a "light" locomotive that Engineer Norris was bringing into Albuquerque. When they noticed the track was spreading and the engine "giving way" the engineer and fireman jumped her and were not long in dividing that the country was full of train robbers. In shorter time than it takes to write it the engine was derailed and upset. Thinking that the passenger train was immediately behind him Engineer Norris started back at a lively rate to flag her. He was the target for several shots from the wreckers who con-
